To Whom It May Concern,

This letter is being written in recommendation of Daryl Roudebush. Daryl was a significant contributing member of our IT team in his role as Senior Developer over the past several years. Although Daryl did not report directly to me, we had a significant amount of interaction during his time at HCP. Due to the deficiencies of the business intelligence portion of our legacy ERP system, it was common for me to request specific BI reports, which Daryl took the lead on developing. As a result, we worked closely together, during which time I found Daryl to be extremely easy to work with, capable and dutiful in his project work.

A recent ownership change led to plans to migrate away from our legacy system. This significantly reduced our need for development work.

I would, unequivocally, recommend Daryl for a role within your organization. Should you have any specific question regarding my experience in working with Daryl, please feel free to reach out at your convenience.
